

Chocolate Milk

Seven percent of all American adults believe that chocolate milk comes from brown cows, according to a nationally representative online survey commissioned by the Innovation Center of U.S. Dairy.

If you do the math, that works out to 16.4 million misinformed, milk-drinking people. The equivalent of the population of Pennsylvania (and then some!) does not know that chocolate milk is milk, cocoa and sugar.

From: <https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/wonk/wp/2017/06/15/seven-percent-of-americans-think-chocolate-milk-comes-from-brown-cows-and-thats-not-even-the-scary-part/>

How difficult would it actually be for someone to research (read: Google) where chocolate milk comes from? It would be a matter of seconds before one of these 16.4 million uninformed individuals would be able to step outside the zone of ignorance regarding this. However, they choose not to do this and therefore choose not to know truth.

Let me ask you this: How much do you rely on what others say, what you have always been taught or what you have always assumed when it comes to your knowledge and understanding of the Bible? How often do you really open the book to read and seek the living truth that flows from it?

In Paul's 2 letter to Timothy, he instructs him to, "15 Study and do (his) best to present (himself) to God approved, a workman [tested by trial] who has no reason to be ashamed, accurately handling and skillfully teaching the word of truth."

If your aim is to be a Christian that goes into your world, making disciples and sharing the light of Christ, you cannot be ignorant of God's word. You have to open it. You have to soak it in, absorb it, and bathe in its truth and relevance. Then, you can allow that to flow out of you and into others.
